INVESTING IN KANSAS COMMUNITIES.

In 2012, as Kansas communities grappled with the effects of a devastating mortgage crisis, the Kansas Legislature established the Moderate Income Housing (MIH) program to serve moderate income Kansans living in rural communities. Funded at an annual rate of $2 million per year, demand for the popular program far outpaced available resources.

Ten years later, as the state's economy recovered from the effects of a global pandemic and home prices soared, state leaders again took action. The Kansas Legislature made a historic investment in homes for Kansans, expanding the MIH program and establishing new housing resources to support the growth and prosperity of Kansas communities.

THEN ... AND NOW.

2021 Housing Development Awards

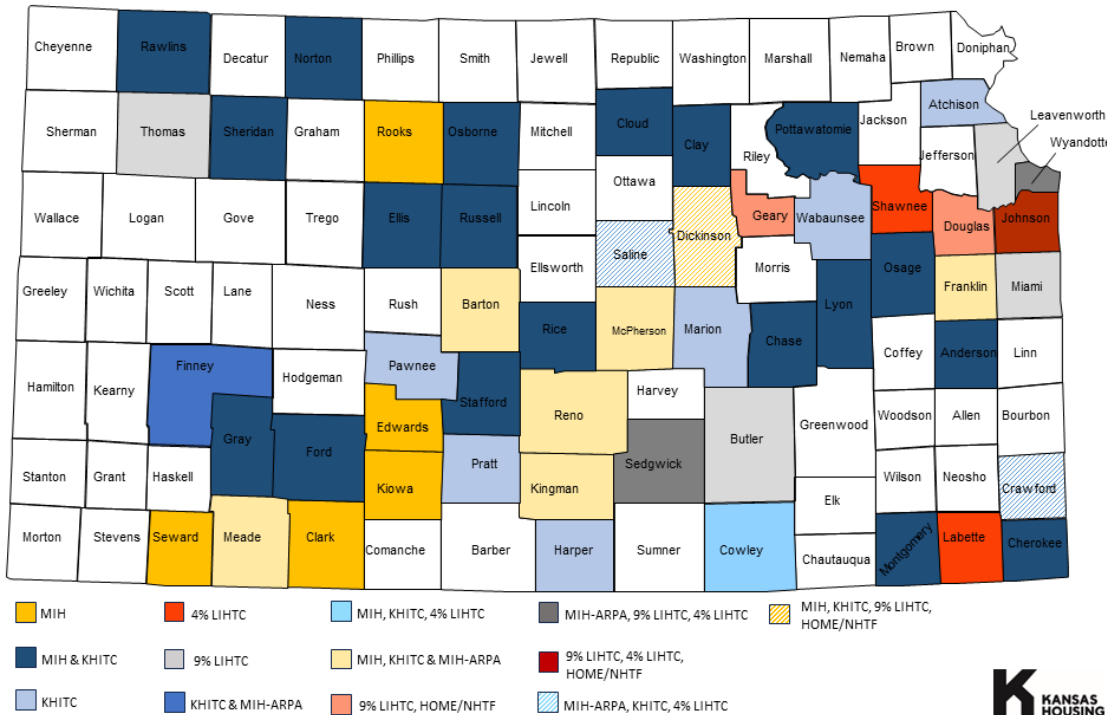

Prior to the state's historic 2022 housing investment, most development was federally funded, with resources reaching just a handful of Kansas counties.
