MEMORANDUM

To: Committee on Judiciary
From: Katherine McBride, Assistant Revisor
Date: February 13, 2012
Subject: Kansas Open Records Act (KORA)

HB 2569

In recent years, the Legislature has undertaken a comprehensive review of the Kansas Open Records Act (KORA) in order to determine if any statutory exceptions to the law are unnecessary and could be discontinued. Currently, there are 8 statutory exceptions to the KORA that are scheduled for expiration in 2012.

K.S.A. 45-229 provides that all exceptions to disclosure in existence on July 1, 2000, shall expire on July 1, 2005, and any new exception created by the legislature or substantial amendment to an exception, shall expire five years after creation or amendment, unless the legislature acts to continue the exception. In the year prior to the expiration, the Revisor of Statutes is required to certify the language and citation of each exception to the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President of the Senate.

Subsection (h) further requires the legislature to:

“(1) ...review the exception before its scheduled expiration and consider as part of the review process the following:

- (A) What specific records are affected by the exception;
 - (B) whom does the exception uniquely affect, as opposed to the general public;
 - (C) what is the identifiable public purpose or goal of the exception;
 - (D) whether the information contained in the records may be obtained readily by alternative means and how it may be obtained;
- (2) An exception may be created or maintained only if it serves an identifiable public purpose and may be no broader than is necessary to meet the public purpose it serves. An identifiable public purpose is served if the legislature finds that the purpose is sufficiently compelling to override the strong public policy of open government and cannot be accomplished without the exception and if the exception:
- (A) Allows the effective and efficient administration of a governmental program, which administration would be significantly impaired without the exception;
 - (B) protects information of a sensitive personal nature concerning individuals, the release of which information would be defamatory to such individuals or cause unwarranted damage to the good name or reputation of such individuals or would jeopardize the safety of such individuals. Only information that would identify the individuals may be excepted under this paragraph; or

(C) protects information of a confidential nature concerning entities, including, but not limited to, a formula, pattern, device, combination of devices, or compilation of information which is used to protect or further a business advantage over those who do not know or use it, the disclosure of which information would injure the affected entity in the marketplace.

(3) Records made before the date of the expiration of an exception shall be subject to disclosure as otherwise provided by law. In deciding whether the records shall be made public, the legislature shall consider whether the damage or loss to persons or entities uniquely affected by the exception of the type specified in paragraph (2)(B) or (2)(C) of this subsection (h) would occur if the records were made public.”

Attachment A lists 8 statutory exceptions to the Kansas Open Records Act that are scheduled for expiration in 2012 and Attachment B provides a summary of each section.
