

I am so thankful to have new directions in my life. The school and the teachers have helped me become someone that I thought was gone. Because of them I am making something of myself and have never been so proud of anything before than earning my diploma. Please don't close new directions, there are more people who want to finish school and new directions can help. They have done so much to help me and get me where I want to be, I think it's only fair that others should get their help too. Thank you!
