- The offender has 12 months or less remaining of the offender's sentence; and
- The Secretary determines that such placement is in the best interests of the child.

The duties of the Secretary under the community parenting release would include:

- Obtaining and reviewing any CINC records involving the offender to determine the best interests of the child prior to making a transfer;
- Approving the offender's residence and living arrangement prior to making a transfer;
- Requiring the offender to comply with all provisions of house arrest;
- Requiring the offender to participate in programming and treatment as needed; and
- Assigning a parole officer to monitor the offender's compliance with the conditions of the release.

The Secretary would have the authority to return any offender to a correctional facility to serve the remainder of the offender's sentence if the offender fails to comply with the requirements of the release.

Background

The bill was introduced in the Senate Committee on Corrections and Juvenile Justice at the request of Senator King. At the hearing before the Senate Committee on Judiciary, Senator King, a representative of the Kansas Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers, and a representative of the Kansas Department of Corrections (KDOC) testified in support of the bill. No neutral or opposing testimony was presented. The proponents were in agreement that enactment of the bill would help to improve incarcerated individuals' parenting skills and would lead to reduced recidivism rates.

The Senate Committee on Judiciary amended the bill to incorporate KDOC's suggestion to strike a requirement for offenders participating in the release to wear GPS-monitoring devices and to assign parole officers, rather than community corrections officers, to supervise offenders participating in the release.

According to the fiscal note prepared by the Division of the Budget, enactment of the bill has the potential to create savings for KDOC and to reduce prison beds. Any fiscal effect associated with the bill is not reflected in The FY 2017 Governor's Budget Report.
