We The People of Wyandotte

To repeat this back: in order to appease the people of Kansas, you wrote legislation in the bill ensuring that everyone would know doing illegal things is illegal. (refer to the picture for my response)

So, is it now more super illegal for Michael Abbott to tell the election workers to change the votes and outcome of the general election than it was previously? I found out today that there are hours of audio-video surveillance of illegal activity that took place in the elections office. (Some democrats worked together to ensure each other would get certain positions and they screwed over the absolute wrong person.) Soooo... Is it more illegal now than it was then?

Anyone can swear to anything and promptly do something illegal. Just ask all the bonded public servants in Johnson and Wyandotte Counties.

It appears that the legislators, in order to give a pretense of serving the people, threw together a bunch of language which would support the masquerade of service whilst not giving us any actual protection or help in securing elections in the future.

I have not made a mockery of your supposed service. You have.
